

5th Early Career workshop in Quantitative Political Economy

19-21 May 2024 at King's College London (in person)

About QPE

Based in the Department of Political Economy at KCL, the Quantitative Political Economy research group (QPE) strives to gather political scientists and economists and is committed to bridging the two disciplines.

About our early career workshop:

- We look forward to offering excellent networking opportunity, insightful feedback, and social events for early career quantitative political economists.
- We welcome PhD students and Postdocs from all social science disciplines who either apply advanced quantitative methods or formal modelling to study political economy and politics, or who conduct quantitative policy evaluations. Selected participants will discuss their work for 30 minutes. Each presenter will be assigned a discussant from KCL faculty.
- In addition to presentations from early-career academics, the workshop will include keynote address by Sonia Bhalotra (University of Warwick) and Peter van der Windt (NYU-Abu Dhabi)
- Participants are invited for a conference dinner on the evening of May 20th.
- There is no fee for the event. We have a limited number of travel and accommodation grants available. If you require one of the grants to attend the workshop, please indicate this in the application form.
- The workshop will start around 16:00 on 19 May, and it will end around 14:00 on 21 May.
